Wildlife, not concrete

Look around you. Oases like these are rare! As more and more land is built over, natural habitats are disappearing – that's why it is all the more important to value them.

Flower meadows, natural hedges and ponds provide valuable habitats for a whole range of plant and animal species. So this managed site, planted with native species, helps to enhance biological diversity. It is an area of calm where everyone – staff and visitors alike – can take pleasure in watching the various inhabitants, including butterflies, songbirds and hedgehogs.

Motivation – Certification

The Nature & Economy Foundation awards certificates to residential and commercial sites nationwide that have been designed to be as natural as possible.

Thanks to the dedication and commitment of many firms and contractors more than 400 certificates have already been awarded. You are in one of these certified areas as you read these lines.

Observe, relax and enjoy!
